Item 7.01 Regulation FD.

On December 15, 2009, the board of directors of West Pharmaceutical Services, Inc. approved a realignment of West's business operations into two divisions, Packaging Systems and Delivery Systems, to take effect on January 1, 2010.

The Packaging Systems division will focus on primary container solutions, including components for drug packaging and prefillable syringe systems. The division will consist of West's core pharmaceutical packaging and disposable medical components included in the traditional business operated currently under the Pharmaceutical Systems reporting segment. The division also will include associated laboratory and other services. Steven A. Ellers, West's President and a 26-year West veteran, will head up the Packaging Systems division. The growth strategy for the Packaging Systems division includes organic growth through market segmentation, new-product innovation, strategic acquisitions and geographic expansion.

The Delivery Systems division will focus on safety systems and multi-component systems for drug administration. It will consist of the injection-molding and assembly business within the current Tech Group segment, safety and administration systems, advanced injection systems and other innovation-related products and businesses. John E. Paproski will lead the new division in the position of President, Delivery Systems, and report directly to West's CEO Donald E. Morel, Jr. During his 27 years with the Company, Mr. Paproski has held a variety of positions within operations and R&D, including most recently, Vice President, Innovation. West intends to pursue growth in the Delivery Systems division through the development and commercialization of proprietary multi-component systems for injectable drug administration and other healthcare applications. As part of this realignment, Robert S. Hargesheimer, the former president of the Tech Group segment, will transition to a global strategic operations role.
