Title: CEO of SK Telecom Shows Optimism for New and Global Business

SK Telecom proclaimed 2005, at a press conference held on March 22, as a year to begin reaping results in its new business and global business areas.

The CEO recalled his first year of leading the company to be essential in laying the foundation for success in the next 10 years. SK Telecom developed new growth engines by advancing into the U.S. market, acquiring license for CDMA handset production in China, obtaining Satellite DMB and WiBro licenses, and launching the pilot built-in telematics services in Cheju Island of Korea in the past year.

He also added that SK Telecom has been pursuing transparent management by introducing the continuous audit system for the first time in Korea in January, and making the number of outside directors larger than the number of standing directors. President Kim's remarks about WIPI (Wireless Internet Platform for Interoperability) were under the spotlight at the press conference. He announced that he will actively work to internationalize WIPI through alliances with related standard organizations such as OMA (Open Mobile Alliance) and JCP (Java Community Process).

When WIPI successfully becomes a global standard, SK Telecom expects that it will not only increase exports of related domestic companies but also open up new business opportunities for new WIPI related businesses.
