Enclosures: New City Licence in China

CITIC Prudential awarded life insurance licence for Wuhan in Central China

Prudential plc (Prudential) announced today that its life insurance joint venture, CITIC Prudential, has been awarded a life insurance licence for Wuhan, in Hubei province in Central China. Prudential is the only foreign life insurer with a licence for Wuhan and the only European life insurer with licences for seven Chinese cities.

Wuhan is the capital of Hubei province and is an economic and cultural centre for Central China. With a population of 7.68 million people, Wuhan's GDP in 2004 was GBP12.9billion, an increase of 14.5% on 2003. Wuhan represents CITIC Prudential's first foray into Central China and will be used as a base for expansion within Hubei province.

Mark Norbom, Chief Executive, Prudential Corporation Asia, said, "Just as

Edgar Filing: PRUDENTIAL PLC - Form 6-K

Prudential was the first British insurer to enter the Chinese life insurance market in 2000, we are the first foreign life insurance company with a licence for the economically important city of Wuhan. This move into Wuhan in Central China further demonstrates the strength of our commitment to building a material life insurance business in China with our partner CITIC."

Captain Chia, CEO China CITIC Prudential Life added, "This new office is an exciting opportunity for CITIC Prudential. Located within Hubei province in Central China, Wuhan provides CITIC Prudential with an excellent platform for further expansion into Central and Western China."

CITIC Prudential continues to grow its presence in China. In 2000 it opened its Guangzhou branch, and in August 2003 its Beijing branch opened for business. In September 2004 CITIC Prudential Suzhou commenced operation. In February 2005 CITIC Prudential announced new licences for Dongguan and Foshan and opened the businesses in March. CITIC Prudential Shanghai will open in May and the Wuhan branch will open in the third quarter of 2005.

CITIC Prudential now has a network of over 8,000 staff and agents in China.
