Then, considering this data, the Chairman shall declare the General Shareholders Meeting validly constituted, at first or second calling, as appropriate, and shall then grant the floor to the Notary Public, if one has been called, for him to ask those present whether they have any reservations or complaint concerning the data stated and the valid constitution of the Meeting, so it may be duly recorded in its Minutes.

If the presence of a Notary Public has not been required, the references made to him in this article shall be understood to refer to the Secretary of the General Shareholders Meeting .

Article 19. Interventions.

1. Once the meeting has begun, the Chairman will invite the shareholders who wish to address the General Meeting to request information, or to make any other statement in relation to the points on the agenda, to do so, after indicating, by means of their attendance card or relevant certificate, their identity data and number of shares held or, if appropriate, represented.

2. Once the Board presiding the Meeting has the list of shareholders who wish to talk, and after presentation of the relevant reports by the Chairman of the General Shareholders Meeting, or the persons he may appoint for that purpose, and in any case before voting on the matters on the agenda, the Chairman shall allow a turn for the shareholders to speak. The shareholders shall speak in the order in which they are called for that purpose by the Board presiding the Meeting.

Those speaking who so wish may request that the written Minutes of the Meeting record the full text of their speech, to which end they must have delivered it at that moment to the Notary Public taking the Minutes of the meeting, or failing that, to the Secretary or individuals aiding one or the other.

3. It is due to the Chairman, on the terms established by the Law, to provide the information or clarifications requested, although, when deemed appropriate due to the matters these may concern, the Chairman may ask any of the Chairman of the Commissions of the Board of Directors, a member of the Board presiding, or any director, employee, expert or advisor to the Company to do so. The Chairman may determine, in each case, according to the information or clarifications requested, whether the answer will be provided individually, or grouped by subject matter, and must bear in mind the terms of article 10 of these Regulations.

1. The Chairman of the General Shareholders Meeting has the powers of direction and moderation of the Meeting, and must direct and maintain the discussion within the limits of the agenda, putting an end to it when each matter has, in his opinion, been sufficiently discussed.

2. In exercise of his duties to direct and moderate the General Shareholders Meeting, the Chairman, aided by the Secretary, shall have the following powers, among others:

- a) To order performance of interventions by the shareholders on the terms foreseen in these Regulations.
- b) To grant the floor, at the moment he considers appropriate, to shareholders wishing to speak, being able to withdraw access when he considers a specific matter to have been sufficiently debated, or when the proceedings of the meeting are hindered, or concerning matters that are not included on the agenda.
- c) To agree, when considered necessary, extension of the time initially available to the shareholders for their intervention, or, when the high number of interventions requested or any other circumstance makes it advisable, to set a maximum duration for each intervention, or a time limit on speech by the shareholder, respecting the principle of equal treatment of the shareholders intervening in all cases.
- d) To moderate the interventions by the shareholders, being able to call them to clarify matters that may not have being sufficiently explained or to keep to the agenda and abide by the appropriate rules of politeness in their intervention, calling shareholders to order when their interventions are manifestly on terms of obstruction or aim to disturb the normal proceedings of the Meeting, and he may adopt the appropriate measures to guarantee the normal progress of the Meeting continues.

Article 21. Voting on the proposed resolutions.

1. When, if appropriate, the interventions by the shareholders have concluded, and the replies are provided in keeping with what is foreseen in these Regulations, it shall proceed to submit the relevant proposals of resolutions to voting.

The voting process of each one of the proposed resolutions shall be carried out according to the agenda foreseen in the calling and, if proposals are made concerning the matters on which the Meeting may resolve without their being recorded in the agenda, these shall be submitted to vote after the proposals on the agenda as called, except when otherwise decided by the President.

2. After its complete, or summarised, reading by the Secretary, which may be dispensed with when the text of the proposed resolution at the relevant point on the agenda concerned has been provided to the shareholders at the beginning of the General Shareholders Meeting, voting shall take place first on proposed resolutions that may have duly been prepared by the Board of Directors, and following if pertinent, those proposed by other parties shall be voted on, following the order set for that purpose by the Chairman.

In all cases, once a proposed resolution is agreed, all the others concerning the same matters shall automatically be withdrawn and incompatible with it, without, thus it being appropriate to submit them to vote, which shall be stated by the Chairman of the Meeting or by the Secretary if duly empowered by the latter.

3. Voting on the resolutions proposed shall be according to the following voting telling system:

- a) In the case of voting on proposed resolutions related to matters included in the agenda, the votes in favour of the proposal shall be those of all the shares brought to the meeting, present or represented, according to the Roll of Attendance, minus the votes cast by holders of shares or their representatives who inform the tellers and other assistants to the Board presiding, or if appropriate the Notary Public, by written communication or personal manifestation, that they are voting against, in blank, or abstaining.

Table of Contents

- b) When it is a vote on proposed resolutions concerning matters not included on the agenda, the votes considered contrary to the proposal shall be all those of the shares brought to the meeting, present or represented, according to the Roll of Attendance, minus the votes by holders of shares or their representatives who inform the tellers and other assistants to the Board presiding, or if appropriate the Notary Public, by written communication or personal manifestation, that they are voting against, in blank, or abstaining.

- c) With regard to what is stated in paragraphs a) and b) precedent, for each of the proposals submitted for voting, it will be considered as concurring shares to the meeting, either present or represented, all recorded in the Roll of Attendance minus those shares that according to applicable legislation, and attending to the proposal submitted to voting, could not exercise its voting right.

Regardless of the voting mechanisms followed for the calculation of the votes, the verification by the Board of the Meeting, or should this not have being formed, by the Secretary of the Meeting, of the existence of a sufficient number of favourable votes to reach, in each case, the required majority, will allow the President to declare approved the relevant proposal.

4. Pursuant to the contents of the By-Laws, exercise of the voting right on the resolutions proposed on the agenda may be delegated or exercised by the shareholder by postal or electronic correspondence, or any other means of remote communication, as long as, in such cases, the Company has set up accredited procedures to duly guarantee the identity of the individual exercising voting rights and an unequivocal record of the identity and status (shareholder or representative) of the voters, the number of shares voted with and the sense of the vote or, as appropriate, abstention.

The procedure or procedures that the Company may establish to those ends shall determine the requisites, terms and conditions to exercise delegation or the right to vote, and this must be subject to publication in the announcement of the calling of the General Meeting, and on the Company web page.

Article 22. Passing resolutions and announcing the result.

1. The resolutions shall be passed by majority, that is, the proposed resolutions shall be approved when the number of votes in favour of each proposal is greater than the number of votes against it (whatever the number of blank votes and abstentions), notwithstanding the reinforced voting quorums established by the Law and in the By-Laws.

2. Once voting on the proposals has taken place on the terms foreseen in these Regulations, the Chairman, personally or through the Secretary, shall announce the results, stating whether each one of them has been approved or rejected.

Article 23. Conclusion of the Meeting.

When voting on the proposed resolutions is concluded and their approval or rejection announced, the General Shareholders Meeting shall end and the Chairman shall adjourn the session.

TITLE VI. EXTENSION AND SUSPENSION OF THE GENERAL MEETING

Article 24. Extension.

When proposed by the Chairman of the General Meeting, or at the request of shareholders representing at least a quarter of the stock capital present and represented at the meeting, the General Meeting may resolve to extend the session on one or more consecutive days. If the place where the successive meetings are to be held must be other than that of the first meeting for organisational reasons, that shall be determined, if possible, when the extension is agreed; if not, it shall be notified, as soon as determined, in the adequate media, that shall be stated in the resolution on extension.

Whatever the number of its sessions, the Meeting shall be considered a sole event, drafting a sole Minutes for all the sessions. Thus, it shall not be reiterate fulfilment of the requisites foreseen in the Law, in the By-Laws or in these Regulations in the successive sessions for them to be validly constituted.

Only the shareholders on the Roll of Attendance shall be entitled to attend and vote at the successive sessions held as a consequence of extension of the General Shareholders Meeting. The shares brought by shareholders on that Roll of Attendance who are absent, as appropriate, from the subsequent sessions, shall not be deducted and shall continue to be counted for calculation of the necessary majority to pass resolutions. However, any shareholder who intends to be absent from the subsequent sessions may, if he sees fit, inform the tellers and other assistants to the Board presiding, or the Notary Public if appropriate, of that intention and sense of vote in the proposals stated on the agenda.

Article 25. Suspension.

1. Exceptionally, in the event of situations arising that substantially affect the good order of the meeting, or that temporarily hinder normal proceedings, after consulting the Board presiding the General Meeting, the Chairman may agree to suspend the session for the time required to re-establish the necessary conditions for it to continue.

In this case, the Chairman presiding, also consulting the Board, may take the measures deemed appropriate to avoid repetition of circumstances that could again alter good order and proceeding of the meeting.

2. If, once the session re-commences, the circumstances that have given rise to the temporary suspension persist, after consulting the Board presiding, the Chairman may propose to those attending that the General Meeting be extended to the following day, as foreseen in the preceding article.

If the extension is not agreed, or it is not possible to agree it for any reason, after consulting the Board presiding the General Shareholders Meeting, the Chairman of the Meeting may decide to definitively suspend the Meeting, or to continue it, proceeding directly to submit the proposed resolutions on the points on the agenda prepared by the Board of Directors or by the shareholders up to that moment to vote, as long as the following requisites are fulfilled:

- a) That all shareholders have been able to exercise their right to information from the Meeting being called and the Company has provided the relevant information and documentation according to the applicable legal and statutory provisions.
- b) That approval of all or some of the proposals on the matters included in the agenda is of notorious importance to corporate interest, or that substantial damage may be caused by definitive suspension of the Meeting.
- c) That one may reasonably presume that the situation that would have been caused by suspension of the Meeting would arise again when the session reconvened.

When, according to what is foreseen in this section, it proceeds directly to submit the proposed resolutions to voting, the shareholders present may request that the Board presiding or, when appropriate, the Notary Public, or the Directors in writing, provide as much information as they deem appropriate on the matters on the agenda of the Meeting, and the Directors must attend to those written requests within seven days following the conclusion of the Meeting, notwithstanding the limitations foreseen in article 10.3 of these Regulations.

The Minutes approved in either of these two ways shall have executive force as of the date of its approval. Once the Minutes are approved, they shall be signed by the Secretary of the Board and transcribed in the Minutes Book.
