THE COMPANY

We are a diversified, growth-oriented land development and agribusiness company whose strategy is to increase the value of our real estate and resource holdings in order to increase stockholders' value. Operations consist primarily of land planning and entitlement, land development, commercial sales and leasing, mineral, grazing and recreational leasing and licensing, income portfolio management, and farming. Our prime asset is approximately 270,000 acres of contiguous, largely undeveloped land that, at its most southerly border, is 60 miles north of Los Angeles and, at its most northerly border, is 15 miles east of Bakersfield.

Over the last several years, we have been implementing a strategy that is leading to our transformation from an agricultural operations-based company to a real estate development company. In order to implement our strategy, we began to pursue joint venture agreements for the development of portions of our land, began conceptual planning and land entitlement projects, and undertook a program of divesting non-strategic assets.

Our principal executive offices are located at P.O. Box 1000, Lebec, California 93243, telephone number (661) 248-3000. We maintain a World Wide Web site at <http://www.tejonranch.com>.

PRIVATE PLACEMENT OF COMMON STOCK AND ADDITIONAL INVESTMENT

RIGHTS

On May 6, 2004, we concluded a private placement of 1.23 million shares of our common stock. The purchase price was $32.41 per share. We also granted the investors a right to purchase up to (i) an aggregate of 308,546 additional shares of common stock at $32.41 per share issuable upon the exercise of additional investment rights which expire 90 days following the effective date of the registration statement of which this prospectus is a part and (ii) an aggregate of 140,248 additional shares of common stock at $35.65 per share issuable upon the exercise of additional investment rights which expire 180 days following the effective date of the registration statement of which this prospectus is a part. We are filing this prospectus, at our expense, as required by the securities purchase agreement with the selling securityholders. We will not receive any proceeds from the resale of the common stock by the selling securityholders.

RISK FACTORS

Certain information set forth or incorporated by reference in this prospectus includes forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 and is subject to certain risks and uncertainties, including those identified under this caption. Readers are cautioned not to place undue reliance on these statements, which speak only as of the date hereof. The actual results of the Company may vary materially from those anticipated in the forward-looking statement. The Company undertakes no obligation to release publicly any revisions to these forward-looking statements to reflect events or circumstances after the date hereof or to reflect unanticipated events or developments. In addition to the other information included elsewhere in this prospectus, the following factors should be considered carefully in evaluating an investment in the Securities offered by this prospectus.

We are involved in a cyclical industry and are affected by changes in general and local economic conditions.

The real estate development industry is cyclical and is significantly affected by changes in general and local economic conditions, including:

Employment levels;

Availability of financing;

Interest rates;

Table of Contents

Consumer confidence; and Demand for the developed product, whether residential, commercial or industrial.

The process of development of a project begins, and financial and other resources are committed, long before a real estate project comes to market, which could occur at a time when the real estate market is depressed. It is also possible in a rural area like ours that no market for a project will develop as projected.

Higher interest rates can have a significant impact on the real estate industry.

Higher interest rates generally impact the real estate industry by making it harder for buyers to qualify for financing, which can lead to a decrease in the demand for residential, commercial or industrial sites. Any decrease in demand will negatively impact our proposed developments. Any downturn in the economy or consumer confidence can also be expected to result in reduced housing demand and slower industrial development, which would negatively impact the demand for land we are developing.

We are subject to various land use regulations and require governmental approvals for our developments that could be denied.

In planning and developing our land, we are subject to various local, state, and federal statutes, ordinances, rules and regulations concerning zoning, infrastructure design, subdivision of land, and construction. All of our new developments require amending existing general plan and zoning designations, so it is possible that our entitlement applications could be denied. In addition, the zoning that ultimately is approved could include density provisions that would limit the number of homes and other structures that could be built within the boundaries of a particular area, which would adversely impact the financial returns from a given project. The Los Angeles County Planning Department recently released a set of draft amendments to the Los Angeles County General Plan which would extend a planning overlay designation called Sensitive Ecological Areas to cover most of the footprint of the Centennial project. It is not clear at this early stage what chance this draft has of being adopted by the county Board of Supervisors or what its impact on Centennial would be, but if adopted it would likely involve additional processing time, studies, and findings by county officials, could have an adverse impact similar to the density provisions described above and, as a worst case, could provide a pretext for denying the Centennial application. In addition, many states, cities and counties (including neighboring Ventura County) have in the past approved various slow growth or urban limit line measures. If that were to occur in the jurisdictions governing our land use, our future real estate development activities could be significantly adversely affected.

A state agency has recently released an environmental document for a proposed $37 billion high-speed rail system for California. There are two routes proposed between Los Angeles and Bakersfield, both of which traverse Tejon Ranch. One would run at the northern tip of the ranch, which would not affect any development plans, and one would run along Interstate 5, which would have a significant, adverse affect on two of our projects. This route would run next to Tejon Lake, could have significant impacts on the viability of Tejon Mountain Village during the system's construction period, and could possibly impair the ability of this area ultimately to support recreational amenities. This route also runs through TIC-East. The economic effect of these impacts should be largely offset by the significant condemnation award and severance damages that we should receive for the taking of some of our most valuable land, but the outcome of such condemnation proceedings cannot be assured and the proceedings are likely to be protracted. A bond measure to fund this rail system is currently set to appear on the November 2004 California statewide ballot, but the governor has called for it to be removed from the ballot due to California's current fiscal condition, although its removal cannot not assured.

Third-party litigation could increase the time and cost of our development efforts.

The land use approval processes we must follow to ultimately develop our projects have become increasingly complex. Moreover, the statutes, regulations and ordinances governing the approval processes provide third parties the opportunity to challenge the proposed plans and approvals. As a result, the prospect of third-party challenges to planned real estate developments provides additional uncertainties in real estate development planning and entitlements. Third-party challenges in the form of litigation would, by their nature, adversely affect the length of time and the cost required to obtain the necessary approvals. In addition, adverse decisions arising from any litigation would increase the costs and length of time to obtain ultimate approval of a project and could adversely affect the design, scope, plans and profitability of a project.

We are subject to environmental regulations and opposition from environmental groups that could cause delays and increase the costs of our development efforts or preclude such development entirely.

Environmental laws that apply to a given site can vary greatly according to the site's location and condition, present and former uses of the site, and the presence or absence of sensitive elements like wetlands and endangered species. Environmental laws and conditions may result in delays, cause us to incur additional costs for compliance, mitigation and processing land use applications, or preclude development in specific areas. In addition, in California third parties have the ability to file litigation challenging the approval of a project, which they usually do by alleging inadequate disclosure and mitigation of the environmental impacts of the project. While we have worked with representatives of various environmental interests and wildlife agencies to minimize and mitigate the impacts on our planned projects, certain groups opposed to development have made clear they intend to oppose our projects vigorously, so litigation challenging their approval is expected. The issues most commonly cited in opponents' public comments include the poor air quality of the San Joaquin Valley air basin, potential impacts of projects on the California condor, presumed removal of oak trees, and the potential for our lands to function as wildlife movement corridors. In addition, certain military commanders have sent correspondence opposing the Centennial project because it would limit their use of low-level training flight routes that traverse over Tejon Ranch.

Until governmental entitlements are received, we will have a limited inventory of real estate.

Our four current and planned real estate projects, the Tejon Industrial Complex West and East, Centennial and the Tejon Mountain Village, all involve obtaining governmental entitlements and improving lots for sale to developers or, in the case of Tejon Industrial Complex, end users. The value of these lots can fluctuate significantly as a result of changing economic and market conditions.

We are in competition with several other developments for customers and residents.

Within our real estate activities, we are in direct competition for customers with other industrial sites in Northern, Central, and Southern California. We are also in competition with other highway interchange locations along Interstate 5 and State Route 99 for commercial leasing opportunities. Centennial ultimately would compete with other residential housing and job center options in the region, such as developments in the Santa Clarita Valley, Lancaster, Palmdale, and Bakersfield. Tejon Mountain Village will compete generally for discretionary dollars that consumers will allocate to recreation and second homes, so its competition will range over a greater area and range of projects.

Our developable land is concentrated entirely in California.

All of our developable land is in California. Any adverse change in the economic climate of California, or our region of that state, and any adverse change in the political or regulatory climate of California, could adversely affect our real estate development activities. Ultimately, our ability to sell or lease lots may decline as a result of weak economic conditions, or restrictive regulations.

We are dependent on key personnel and the loss of one or more of those key personnel may materially and adversely affect our prospects.

We currently depend heavily on the services of Robert A. Stine, our President and Chief Executive Officer, and a number of other key management personnel. The loss of Mr. Stine's services or that of other key personnel could materially and adversely affect our results of operations, financial condition, or our ability to pursue land development. Our success will also depend in part on our ability to attract and retain additional qualified management personnel. Competition for such personnel is strong in the real estate and land development industry and we may not be successful in attracting or retaining the personnel we require.

Only a limited market exists for our common stock, which could lead to price volatility.

The limited trading market for our common stock may cause fluctuations in the market value of our common stock to be exaggerated, leading to price volatility in excess of that which would occur in a more active trading market for our common stock.

Concentrated ownership of our common stock creates a risk of sudden change in our share price.

As of June 8, 2004, directors and members of our executive management team beneficially owned or controlled approximately 49% of our common stock. Investors who purchase our common stock may be subject to certain risks due to the concentrated ownership of our common stock. The sale by any of our large shareholders of a significant portion of that shareholder's holdings could have a material adverse effect on the market price of our common stock. In addition, the registration of any significant amount of additional shares of our common stock will have the immediate effect of increasing the public float of our common stock and any such increase may cause the market price of our common stock to decline or fluctuate significantly.

Inflation can have a significant adverse effect on our operations.

Inflation can have a major impact on our farming operations. The farming operations are most affected by escalating costs and unpredictable revenues (due to an oversupply of certain crops) and very high irrigation water costs. High fixed water costs related to our farm lands will continue to adversely affect earnings. Prices received for many of our products are dependent upon prevailing market conditions and commodity prices. Therefore, it is difficult for us to accurately predict revenue, just as we cannot pass on cost increases caused by general inflation, except to the extent reflected in market conditions and commodity prices.

Within our real estate operations, our lease portfolio is protected to some extent from inflation, since percentage rent clauses and Consumer Price Index increases in our leases tend to adjust rental receipts for inflation.

We may encounter other risks that could impact our ability to develop our land.

We may also encounter other difficulties in developing our land, including:

Natural risks, such as geological and soil problems, earthquakes, heavy rains and flooding and heavy winds;

Shortages of qualified tradespeople;

Reliance on local contractors, who may be inadequately capitalized;

Shortages of materials; and Increases in the cost of certain materials.

USE OF PROCEEDS

We will not receive any of the proceeds from the sale of our common stock offered hereby. We received proceeds from the sale of the shares of common stock offered by this prospectus and we will receive additional proceeds if, and to the extent that, the additional investment rights are exercised. This money will be used for the purpose of securing real estate development entitlements for planned residential and recreational projects, constructing infrastructure development within our real estate projects, and repaying indebtedness.

Table of ContentsSELLING STOCKHOLDERS

The shares of common stock being offered by the selling securityholders were issued pursuant to a Securities Purchase Agreement, dated as of May 5, 2004, and are issuable upon exercise of additional investment rights, which were also issued pursuant to the Securities Purchase Agreement. For additional information regarding the issuance of these shares of common stock and the additional investment rights, see Private Placement Of Common Stock And Additional Investment Rights above. We are registering the shares of common stock in order to permit the selling securityholders to offer the shares for resale from time to time. Except for Third Avenue Trust entities and its affiliates, the selling securityholders have not had any material relationship with us within the past three years except for the ownership of these shares of common stock and the additional investment rights.

The table below lists the selling securityholders and other information regarding the beneficial ownership of the common stock by each of the selling securityholders. The second column lists the number of shares and percentage of common stock beneficially owned by each selling securityholder, based on its ownership of the shares of common stock and the additional investment rights issued pursuant to the May 6, 2004 private placement, as of May 27, 2004, assuming exercise of all of the additional investment rights held by the selling securityholders on that date, without regard to any limitations on exercise.

The third column lists the shares of our common stock being offered by this prospectus by the selling securityholders.

The fourth column assumes the sale of all of the shares of our common stock offered by the selling securityholders pursuant to this prospectus.

Under the terms of the additional investment rights, a selling securityholder (except for the Third Avenue Trust entities and its affiliates) may not exercise the additional investment rights, to the extent such exercise would cause such selling securityholder, together with its affiliates, to beneficially own a number of shares of common stock which would exceed 9.99% of our then outstanding common stock following such exercise, excluding for purposes of such determination shares of common stock issuable upon exercise of the additional investment rights that have not been exercised. The number of shares in the second column does not reflect this limitation. The selling securityholders may sell all, some or none of their shares in this offering. See Plan of Distribution.

PLAN OF DISTRIBUTION

The selling securityholders may, from time to time, sell any or all of their shares of common stock issued pursuant to the May 6, 2004 private placement or upon exercise of the additional investment rights on any stock exchange, market or trading facility on which the shares are traded or in private transactions. These sales may be at fixed or negotiated prices. The selling securityholders may use any one or more of the following methods when selling shares:

ordinary brokerage transactions and transactions in which the broker-dealer solicits purchasers;

block trades in which the broker-dealer will attempt to sell the shares as agent but may position and resell a portion of the block as principal to facilitate the transaction;

purchases by a broker-dealer as principal and resale by the broker-dealer for its account;

an exchange distribution in accordance with the rules of the applicable exchange;

privately negotiated transactions;

short sales;

broker-dealers may agree with the selling securityholders to sell a specified number of such shares at a stipulated price per share;

a combination of any such methods of sale; and any other method permitted pursuant to applicable law.

The selling securityholders may also sell shares under Rule 144 under the Securities Act, if available, rather than under this prospectus.

The selling securityholders, to the extent permitted by law, may also engage in short sales against the box, puts and calls and other transactions in our securities or derivatives of our securities and may sell or deliver shares in connection with these trades.

Broker-dealers engaged by the selling securityholders may arrange for other brokers-dealers to participate in sales. Broker-dealers may receive commissions or discounts from the selling securityholders (or, if any broker-dealer acts as agent for the purchaser of shares, from the purchaser) in amounts to be negotiated. The selling securityholders do not expect these commissions and discounts to exceed what is customary in the types of transactions involved. Any profits on the resale of shares of common stock by a broker-dealer acting as principal might be deemed to be underwriting discounts or commissions under the Securities Act. Discounts, concessions, commissions and similar selling expenses, if any, attributable to the sale of shares will be borne by a selling securityholder. The selling securityholders may agree to indemnify any agent, dealer or broker-dealer that participates in transactions involving sales of the shares if liabilities are imposed on that person under the Securities Act.

Edgar Filing: TEJON RANCH CO - Form 424B3

The selling securityholders may from time to time pledge or grant a security interest in some or all of the shares of common stock owned by them and, if they default in the performance of their secured obligations, the pledgees or secured parties may offer and sell the shares of common stock from time to time under this prospectus after we have filed an amendment to this prospectus under Rule 424(b)(3) or other applicable provision of the Securities Act of 1933 amending the list of selling securityholders to include the pledgee, transferee or other successors in interest as selling securityholders under this prospectus.

Table of Contents

The selling securityholders also may transfer the shares of common stock in other circumstances, in which case the transferees, pledgees or other successors in interest will be the selling beneficial owners for purposes of this prospectus and may sell the shares of common stock from time to time under this prospectus after we have filed an amendment to this prospectus under Rule 424(b)(3) or other applicable provision of the Securities Act of 1933 amending the list of selling securityholders to include the pledgee, transferee or other successors in interest as selling securityholders under this prospectus.

The selling securityholders and any broker-dealers or agents that are involved in selling the shares of common stock may be deemed to be underwriters within the meaning of the Securities Act in connection with such sales. In such event, any commissions received by such broker-dealers or agents and any profit on the resale of the shares of common stock purchased by them may be deemed to be underwriting commissions or discounts under the Securities Act. The selling securityholders have advised us that they have acquired their securities in the ordinary course of business and they have not entered into any agreements, understandings or arrangements with any person regarding the sale of their shares of common stock, nor is there an underwriter or coordinating broker acting in connection with a proposed sale of shares of common stock by any selling securityholder. If we are notified by any selling securityholder that any material arrangement has been entered into with a broker-dealer for the sale of shares of common stock, if required, we will file a supplement to this prospectus. If the selling securityholders use this prospectus for any sale of the shares of common stock, they will be subject to the prospectus delivery requirements of the Securities Act.

We are required to pay all fees and expenses incident to the registration of the shares of common stock. We have agreed to indemnify the selling securityholders against certain losses, claims, damages and liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act.

The anti-manipulation rules of Regulation M under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 may apply to sales of our common stock and activities of the selling securityholders.
