Item 8.01 Other Events.

As Greater Bay Bancorp (the Company) has previously disclosed in its filings under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, contingent commissions and override payments received by insurance brokerage firms have come under scrutiny by regulatory authorities in various states, most prominently in New York. The Company's insurance brokerage subsidiary, ABD Insurance and Financial Services (ABD), which receives such commissions and payments, has received requests for information from several state insurance commissioners and believes it has complied fully with such requests.

In response to these developments in the insurance industry, we engaged outside counsel to conduct a compliance review of ABD's contingent compensation arrangements and marketing practices. The compliance review included extensive interviews with ABD personnel, analysis of contingency arrangements and review of producer compensation, client files and email activity. No evidence was found to indicate any improper activities of the type alleged against firms in New York, nor were any systemic compliance-related issues identified in these general areas of concern.

On October 20, 2005, ABD received a subpoena from the Office of the Attorney General of the State of New York requesting documents and information relating to ABD's contingent compensation arrangements and marketing practices. As a result of conversations with the State Attorney General's Office, it is our understanding that ABD's receipt of the subpoena is part of that Office's broad review of the insurance brokerage industry and that others in the industry have recently received subpoenas. ABD intends to cooperate with the State Attorney General's Office.
