The following is an article that appeared in the Birmingham Business Journal:

REGIONS/AMSOUTH ADDRESS TOPICS DISCUSSED BY PANELISTS

The merger of Regions Financial Corp. and AmSouth Bancorporation is an unprecedented opportunity to combine two of Birmingham's greatest companies, cement the city's status nationally as a banking center, and create a new company that still traces its roots to the city's founding, continuing to play a key role in community development. This merger of equals will create one of the top 10 bank holding companies in the United States with nearly $140 billion in total assets. The new Regions will have leading positions in some of the fastest growing markets in the U.S. as well as abroad, a balanced mix of businesses including retail and commercial banking, trust and asset management, securities brokerage, and mortgage and insurance services, creating a company with scale, breadth, and the diversification necessary to continue generating shareholder value. The new Regions will have nearly five million customer households, approximately 2,000 offices and 2,800 ATMs across 16 states, creating greater convenience for customers. Our customers will be served by more than 30,000 employees.

What does it mean for our customers? More options, more locations, more convenience and the same commitment to service excellence that's defined us both. But it also means more for the Birmingham area. Few cities can boast of being home to a top 10 bank holding company: Among them are New York, Charlotte, San Francisco, and soon, Birmingham. Miami doesn't have one, nor does Dallas, Houston, Chicago, or Washington, D.C. As a result of this merger, Birmingham will retain this elite status.

Community development

Unlike out-of-state banks, the new Regions also brings the potential for continued growth in headquarters jobs, and an even greater commitment to small business lending, community development, and mortgage lending. All of this means greater career opportunities for our associates and an even brighter future for our customers, communities and shareholders. Separately, AmSouth and Regions have been leaders in small business lending both in Birmingham and throughout the state. In the past two years, for example, the two companies made more than $1 billion in small business loans in the Birmingham area alone. We're proud of the support we've provided to small businesses all across Birmingham and are committed to continuing it. We recently announced a $100 billion commitment to community development, and at least half of that commitment, $50 billion over the next seven years, is for lending to small businesses.

Highlights of the commitment include:

At least $50 billion in loans to small businesses;

At least $40 billion in mortgages to low- and moderate-income families or families in low- and moderate-income neighborhoods;

Edgar Filing: AMSOUTH BANCORPORATION - Form 425

At least $10 billion in community development lending and investments;

Formation of the Regions Community Development Corp. to provide technical assistance to nonprofit organizations;

Promoting responsible lending practices and fair lending initiatives; and

Expanded homeownership and financial literacy programs.

The new Regions Community Development Corp. will follow the successful model of the AmSouth Community Development Corp., which has supported a broad range of efforts to expand financing and technical assistance to community organizations and increase the renovation or construction of affordable housing and revitalization of low-income communities.

Employment issue

We're making solid progress in our merger and integration planning, with our paramount concern being that we continue to ensure or improve upon the high quality of customer service each company's customers expect. This merger is an investment in Birmingham's future, but the merger, and the opportunities for future growth it makes possible, require eliminating positions across our 16 states. As in any transaction of this kind, there is the unfortunate reality that some associates from both companies may lose their jobs.

All of our decisions will be made carefully with consideration and respect for the people who have helped build two great companies. However, we expect that the number of people directly affected will be reduced because the normal pace of attrition over the next 18 months will address many of the position reductions. Also, as we look at our combined business operations, there will be opportunities to consolidate certain functions into Birmingham. And, where possible, we intend to redeploy our people, giving them the opportunity to take on other roles in the new Regions. So far, we've announced nearly 200 key leaders for the new Regions. We've worked hard to select the right people to lead our company in the right areas and we're excited about the strong management team we are assembling. We are combining two premier Southeastern financial institutions, each with a long history of commitment to our customers and communities as well as shareholder returns, into an even stronger company with significant future growth opportunities. Our history, our people, and our legacy of relationships have provided a tremendous foundation for success and will follow us as we enter this new era to serve our customers well, to continue building communities, and to create even more value for our shareholders.
