Colleagues,

As you know, all of us at McDermott have gone through a tremendous amount of change over the last three years. Our work to transform our company is certainly not complete, but we can all be very proud of the progress we have made and of the outcomes that we have achieved together. As our most recent results show, we continue to exceed expectations in what is one of the toughest and most competitive environments that our industry has ever seen.

It is our success that helped enable the exciting announcement about McDermott's agreement to combine with CB&I. Over the last three years, we have talked a lot about our focused strategy to stabilize, optimize and grow. This announcement is consistent with that strategy, and is another significant step forward for the company's continued growth and success.

This combination is good news for McDermott. As David said in his note to you earlier today, CB&I's strong technology offering and capabilities in the onshore and LNG markets will give us the scale and diversification to compete in new areas. This is particularly true in our part of the world. McDermott will be able to leverage CB&I's existing relationships in these regions and aim to deliver customers FEED, installation, MMO services and end-to-end engineered and constructed facility solutions across the full project lifecycle. This combination is about growth and it sets the stage for future success, while creating exciting new opportunities for McDermott.

We know you will have a lot of questions, and we are committed to keeping you up to date throughout the process. Please visit the integration planning page on LinQ for more information. This page will continue to be updated as new information becomes available. Additionally, should you receive any media inquiries, please refer them to Adam Morgan (amorgan@mcdermott.com).

For now, it is business as usual for all of us, as we cannot start any actual integration with CB&I until the deal closes. We do not expect this to happen until the second quarter of 2018. As David mentioned, we cannot let today's announcement distract us from executing on our current projects while maintaining our high standards of quality and safety.

I will be sure to keep you updated through this process. If you have any questions, please feel free to speak with your manager, HR business partner or email questions@mcdermott.com. I look forward to working with you in the New Year.
