PART III—NARRATIVE

The Company, through an Audit Committee investigation, has undertaken a review of potential irregularities in the reporting of car sales to manufacturers for purposes of sales-volume-based incentive programs. The Audit Committee engaged special counsel to assist with the investigation after the Company's internal audit group became aware of the irregularities.

The primary objectives of the external investigation are to determine the scope of any improper practices, the extent to which management encouraged or knew about such practices and the extent of any financial impact. As of March 17, 2008, special counsel, with the assistance of the Company's internal audit group and an independent external accounting firm, has reviewed and analyzed data related to car sales at multiple store locations, reviewed related manufacturer auditing reports, conducted numerous employee interviews and analyzed the email traffic of certain dealership personnel as well as selected management personnel.

Prior to the external investigation, manufacturer audits were completed at two stores within the scope of the investigation, resulting in incentive charge-backs totaling approximately $107,400. At a third store, the improper conduct was detected internally and a $51,100 payment was reversed. The analysis to date with respect to the other stores has not identified any significant charge-backs; however, the investigation is not yet complete.

At the present time, the Company does not expect that the irregularities will have a material impact on the Company's previously reported preliminary results. In addition, the investigation to date has not detected evidence that senior management encouraged or knew about the irregularities. However, the external investigation continues to review data which could change these conclusions.

Based upon information obtained during the investigation, a separate review is being conducted by the internal audit group and management to determine if the effective new and used sales date (cutoff) used for financial reporting purposes was in accordance with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles. The review has identified that in a limited number of circumstances, vehicle sale transactions have been reported on the Company's books at the end of a period prior to the final sales contract being executed by the customer. This timing difference (recognition of revenue in one period vs. another) impact is not yet quantifiable; however, the total number of circumstances in which this has occurred is limited to a small percentage of transactions that occur at the end of each period.

The external investigation is not yet complete and special counsel has not issued a final report of its investigation. As a result, the Company could not complete its Annual Report on Form 10-K without unreasonable effort or expense because of the need to consider the impact of the results of the investigation, if any, on a number of Form 10-K items. As previously reported on a Form 8-K filed on February 20, 2008, because of the then ongoing review, year-end financial information released was and continues to be preliminary. The Company will file its Annual Report on Form 10-K as soon as practicable and expects to be able to do so within the fifteen day extension period provided for under SEC Rule 12b-25, but no assurances can be given.

Forward-Looking Statements

This filing includes forward-looking statements within the meaning of the "Safe-Harbor" provisions of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, which management believes are a benefit to shareholders. These statements are necessarily subject to risk and uncertainty and actual results could differ materially due to certain risk factors, including potential adverse findings from (i) the ongoing investigation, (ii) the Company's internal analysis, and (iii) the independent auditor's review of our financial statements.

Forward-looking statements are based on certain assumptions and analyses made by the Company in light of its current knowledge of facts and other factors it believes are appropriate in the circumstances. We make forward-looking statements in this filing about the Company's expected manufacturer charge-backs and estimated number of transactions that will be affected by a change in the recognition of new and used vehicle sales income.
