Syngenta and Fox Paine to acquire Advanta BV

Basel, Switzerland; San Francisco, USA, 12 May 2004

Syngenta and Fox Paine today announced an agreement to acquire Advanta BV, one of the world's leading seed companies, from AstraZeneca of the UK and Royal Cosun of the Netherlands for a consideration of €400 million. Advanta sales in 2003 were €395 million.

- Significantly enhances market share in US corn to 11% and soybean to 10%<sup>1</sup>
- Complete range of corn input traits from 2005

Syngenta also announced today the purchase of glyphosate tolerance technology for corn, called GA21, from Bayer CropScience. This purchase, together with the acquisition of Advanta's North American corn and soybean business, will enable Syngenta to market a complete range of biotech input traits in both corn and soybean from 2005. For corn, this will include Bt insect resistance, glyphosate tolerance and corn rootworm resistance.

Michael Pragnell, Chief Executive Officer of Syngenta, commented: The Garst brand and its leadership are an excellent fit with Syngenta's well-established NK® brand. Syngenta will be uniquely placed to offer North American corn and soybean growers a complete range of solutions including high quality seeds, input traits and world-leading crop protection products. These acquisitions underscore our strategy to reinforce our leadership position, drive future growth and further enhance shareholder value.

Dexter Paine, President of Fox Paine, said: The acquisition of Advanta represents the culmination of Fox Paine's working relationship with Syngenta and complements our recent acquisition of Seminis, the world's largest developer, producer and marketer of fruit and vegetable seeds. We are confident that combining Advanta's innovative agricultural technology, leading market positions and experienced and talented management team with our experience in the seed industry and access to efficient capital will accelerate the growth of this dynamic company. We are excited by the prospect of participating in the future growth of Advanta through this strategic investment and we look forward to our continued partnership with Syngenta.
