To: All Anheuser-Busch Equity Wholesalers and WOD

Thank you to all who participated in Tuesday's conference call and for the many expressions of support. For those of you who could not make the call, a transcript and audio replay is available on abmarketing.com.

As we move ahead, we wanted our wholesalers to have a few additional pieces of information to help over the coming days and weeks. Attached are the following:

A PDF of the ad from this week that can be used to create fliers as leave behinds with retail accounts where needed.

A copy of a letter written for retail customers. We ask that you print and hand deliver this to all your retail accounts within the next two weeks during your weekly sales calls. We will be sending this letter directly to our major chain accounts.

Production of a WE Without Equal decal for usage on your trucks is under way; more information will be available next week. For those of you who may still have older decals on your trucks, please remove or replace them.

We understand your concern over possible consumer reaction. In our experience and in the experience of our advisors, the reaction we're hearing right now is not unusual. The continuing news stories help drive this awareness, and we expect that to diminish over the next few days. However, we will be monitoring it carefully and will be prepared to respond if necessary. We recommend that you decline media interviews during this period, but if there are any major hot spots that you believe should be cause for concern, please let us know. For communicating directly with consumer and retailers, remember some of the key points communicated in this week's press release:

The new Anheuser-Busch InBev will become the global leader in beer with Budweiser as its flagship brand.

This friendly agreement is in the best interest of Anheuser-Busch and its shareholders, business partners, employees.

The new company will be better positioned to compete in the global beer market.

A larger company with geographic diversity creates a more stable organization.

This is a great opportunity for Budweiser to grow globally.

Bud will always be Bud: brewed in the same breweries, by the same people, according to the same recipe, traditions.

Once the initial reaction has run its course, we will begin to communicate the Anheuser-Busch InBev story in the coming weeks and months. But please keep in mind that until the deal is closed later this year, A-B and InBev will continue to operate as separate, independent companies.

We are confident that the combination of Anheuser-Busch and InBev will mean a more competitive global beer company, and we look forward to working with you as we create the global leader in beer.

Sincerely,

CREATING THE GLOBAL LEADER IN BEER

Anheuser-Busch and InBev are joining forces to become the world's leading brewer and one of the world's top-five consumer products companies.

This combination will create a stronger, more competitive global company with an unrivaled worldwide brand portfolio, including Budweiser, Stella Artois and Beck's, and a network to distribute these brands to consumers around the world.

The new company will be named Anheuser-Busch InBev and will reflect our shared appreciation for what makes beer truly great: time-honored institutions and traditions, and deep roots in the community that go back generations.

We are extremely excited about this combination and the opportunities it will bring to our employees, consumers, wholesalers, business partners, shareholders and the communities we serve.

Our vision is about growth and investment and creating long-term opportunities for our business around the world.

This historic transaction will allow us to become a truly diversified, international company with a strong presence in various global markets including the U.S., Europe, Asia, South America and Canada.

Together, Anheuser-Busch and InBev will be able to accomplish much more than each can on its own. We have been successful business partners for quite some time, and it's only natural for us to take our next steps together in this increasingly competitive global environment.

A change in ownership doesn't mean a change in what matters. Bud will always be Bud, from St. Louis to Buenos Aires to Shanghai. This combination will spread the great taste of Budweiser and the spirit of America to new consumers around the world.

To: All Anheuser-Busch Retail Customers

We have received many inquiries over the past few days regarding the announcement from Anheuser-Busch and InBev this week, and what that change means for our retailers. While many of the details are still being ironed out, what will not change is our commitment to superior execution, value-added service, and dedication to our customers by maintaining our goal of "business as usual" during this time of transition.

It is retailers like you who have enabled us to be so successful and we remain as dedicated to your business today as we have always been. InBev (Euronext: INB) and Anheuser-Busch (NYSE: BUD) today announced an agreement to combine the two companies, forming the world's leading global brewer. Anheuser-Busch shareholders will receive $70 per share in cash, for an aggregate equity value of $52 billion, in an industry-transforming transaction. The combined company will be called Anheuser-Busch InBev. Both companies' Boards of Directors have unanimously approved the transaction. InBev has fully committed financing for the purchase of all of Anheuser-Busch's outstanding shares.

The combination of Anheuser-Busch and InBev will create the global leader in the beer industry and one of the world's top five consumer products companies. On a pro-forma basis for 2007, the combined company would have generated global volumes of 460 million hectoliters, revenues of $36.4 billion ($26.6 billion) and EBITDA of $10.7 billion ($7.8 billion). Anheuser-Busch and InBev together believe that this transaction is in the best interests of both companies' shareholders, consumers, employees, wholesalers, business partners and the communities they serve. The company will make St. Louis, Missouri the headquarters for the North American region and the global home of the flagship Budweiser brand. With about 40% of the combined company's revenues to be generated in the U.S., the company will draw on the collective expertise of Anheuser-Busch's dedicated and experienced employees and its culture of quality. Given the limited geographical overlap between the two businesses and the efficiency of Anheuser-Busch's brewery footprint in the United States, all of Anheuser-Busch's U.S. breweries will remain open. InBev CEO Carlos Brito will be chief executive officer of the combined company. The Board of Directors of the combined company will be comprised of the existing directors of the InBev Board, Anheuser-Busch President and CEO August Busch IV and one other current or former director from the Anheuser-Busch Board. In addition, the combined company's management team will draw from key members of both InBev's and Anheuser-Busch's current leadership. Anheuser-Busch will become a wholly owned subsidiary of InBev upon the completion of this transaction. The expanded company will be geographically diversified, with leading positions in the world's top five markets: China, U.S., Russia, Brazil and Germany – and balanced exposure to developed and developing markets. A combination of Anheuser-Busch and InBev will result in significant growth opportunities from leveraging the companies' combined brand portfolio, including the global flagship Budweiser brand and international market leaders such as Stella Artois and Beck's, maximizing the combination's unparalleled global distribution network and applying best practices across the new organization. Budweiser and Bud Light are the largest selling beers in the world, and the combined company will have an unmatched portfolio of imports, local premiums and local core brands.

Carlos Brito, CEO of InBev, said, We are very pleased to announce this historic transaction today, bringing together two great companies that share a rich history of brewing traditions. We are extremely excited about the opportunities that this combination will create for consumers worldwide, as well as our shareholders, employees, business partners and wholesalers. Together, Anheuser-Busch and InBev will be able to accomplish much more than each can on its own. We have been successful business partners for quite some time, and this is the natural next step for us in an increasingly competitive global environment. This combination will create a stronger, more competitive global company with an unrivaled worldwide brand portfolio and distribution network, with great potential for growth all over the world.

August Busch IV, Anheuser-Busch President and CEO, stated, Today's announcement brings new opportunities for Anheuser-Busch and its business, brands and employees. This agreement provides additional and certain value for Anheuser-Busch shareholders, while enhancing global market access for Budweiser, one of America's true iconic brands. We will leverage our collective strengths to create a truly diversified, global company to sustain long-term growth and profitability. In the United States and Canada, both InBev and Anheuser-Busch have seen significant benefits from our existing relationship and we look forward to replicating this success in other parts of the world.

Budweiser, together with Stella Artois and Beck's, will become the combined company's leading global brands, leveraging InBev's expansive international footprint. InBev has a history of successfully building brands around the world, which will complement the unparalleled strength of Anheuser-Busch's brand-building in the U.S. The two companies already have a successful U.S. distribution partnership for InBev's European premium import brands including Stella Artois, Beck's and Bass. Anheuser-Busch's world-class sales and distribution system will continue to support the expansion of these brands in the U.S. market.

Anheuser-Busch's partners fit very well with InBev's global franchise. Anheuser-Busch has equity investments in two companies with strong brands in two key markets: Mexico's Grupo Modelo, which owns Corona Extra, the number five brand globally; and China's Tsingtao, the leading Chinese premium brewer. In addition, Budweiser is a strong and growing national brand in China, and the two companies' footprints in China are complementary. InBev's China business in southeastern China will be enhanced by Anheuser-Busch's strength in northeastern China.

The transaction creates significant profitability potential both in terms of revenue enhancement and cost savings. The combination will yield cost synergies of at least $1.5 billion annually by 2011 phased in equally over three years. Given the highly complementary footprint of the two businesses, such synergies will largely be driven by sharing best practices, economies of scale and rationalization of overlapping corporate functions. InBev has a strong track record of delivering synergies in past transactions and is confident in its ability to achieve these synergies.

In addition, there are meaningful revenue opportunities through expansion of Budweiser on a global scale: InBev is the number one brewer in 10 markets where Budweiser has a very limited presence, and has a superior footprint in nine markets where Budweiser is already present. The transaction is expected to be neutral to normalized earnings per-share in 2009 and accretive beginning in 2010, and return on invested capital will exceed weighted average cost of capital during the second year after close.

The transaction is subject to the approval of InBev and Anheuser-Busch shareholders, and other customary regulatory approvals. Shareholders of both companies will have an opportunity to vote on the proposed combination at special shareholder meetings that will be scheduled at a later date. InBev's controlling shareholder has agreed to vote its shares of InBev in favor of the combination. In light of the limited overlap between the InBev and Anheuser-Busch businesses, the combination should not encounter any significant regulatory issues, and is expected to be completed by the end of 2008.

InBev has received fully committed financing with signed credit facilities from a group of leading financial institutions, including Banco Santander, Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi, Barclays Capital, BNP Paribas, Deutsche Bank, Fortis, ING Bank, JP Morgan, Mizuho Corporate Bank and Royal Bank of Scotland. The transaction will be financed with $45 billion in debt, including a $7 billion bridge financing for divestitures of non-core assets from both companies. In addition, InBev has received commitments for up to $9.8 billion in equity bridge financing which will allow the company flexibility in deciding upon the timing and form of equity financing for a period of up to six months after closing. The combined company is expected to retain a strong investment-grade credit profile, and rapid de-leveraging of the balance sheet is expected through strong free cash flow generation.

InBev has retained Lazard as lead advisor, JPMorgan as co-lead advisor, Deutsche Bank, and BNP Paribas as financial advisors, and Centerview Partners as industry advisor. Legal advisors are Sullivan & Cromwell, Clifford Chance, and Linklaters. Financial advisors to Anheuser-Busch are Goldman Sachs & Co., Citigroup Global Capital Markets Inc. and Moelis & Company and legal advisor is Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP. Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP is legal advisor to the Anheuser-Busch Board.
