99.1 Press Release of the Company, dated October 26, 2004.

1

Use of Non-GAAP Financial Information

The Company's press release, and other communications from time to time, include certain non-GAAP financial measures. A "non-GAAP financial measure" is defined as a numerical measure of a company's financial performance, financial position or cash flows that excludes (or includes) amounts that are included in (or excluded from) the most directly comparable measure calculated and presented in accordance with GAAP in the Company's financial statements.

The attached press release utilizes a measure of free cash flow. Free cash flow is defined as operating cash flow less capital expenditures. The Company's management believes that although free cash flow does not represent the amount of money available for the Company's discretionary spending because certain obligations of the Company must be funded out of free cash flow, it nevertheless provides a useful measure of liquidity for assessing the amount of cash available for general corporate and strategic purposes after funding operating activities and capital expenditures, and deferred costs.

In addition, return on invested capital, also included in the attached press release, is a non-GAAP financial measure. Management defines "return on invested capital" as net income, less investment income plus tax paid on investment income. Invested capital is calculated as average total assets (over a trailing four-quarter period), less average cash and short term investments (over a trailing four-quarter period), less average non-interest bearing current liabilities (over a trailing four-quarter period). Management believes that return on invested capital is useful because it provides investors with additional useful information for evaluating the efficiency of the Company's capital deployed in its operations. Return on invested capital does not consider whether the business is financed with debt or equity, but rather calculates a return on all capital invested in the business.

The non-GAAP financial measures used by the Company in the attached press release may not be comparable to similarly titled measures used by other companies and should not be considered in isolation or as a substitute for measures of performance or liquidity prepared in accordance with GAAP.
