TRADING UPDATE

CARNIVAL

Since the start of the calendar year, booking volumes have been less than expected. Year to date booking volumes for 2003 are approximately equal to last year's levels, but have not increased commensurate with the increase in Carnival's 2003 capacity. Carnival believes bookings in 2003 continue to be impacted by the uncertain economic environment and concerns regarding a war with Iraq compounded by security alerts issued by various national governments. These factors have caused Carnival to reduce cruise pricing to stimulate incremental demand for the first and second quarters.

For its recently completed first quarter, Carnival expects net revenue yields to be approximately equal to last year's levels. The current environment for travel continues to have the most significant effect on Carnival's second quarter 2003 bookings. The uncertainty regarding a possible war with Iraq is causing further deterioration in pricing for the second quarter, as indicated in Carnival's last guidance. As the booking pattern has moved much closer to sailing and because of the uncertainty regarding the geopolitical situation, Carnival is not able to give specific guidance for second quarter net revenue yields, other than, it expects them to be less than last year. The commencement of a war with Iraq would likely have further negative impact on second quarter net revenue yields.

With respect to costs, Carnival continues to expect cost per available berth day in the first quarter, excluding air costs and commissions, to be up approximately 6-8 per cent. compared to last year's levels. For the second quarter, Carnival continues to expect cost per available berth day to be up approximately 10-12 per cent. compared to last year's levels. As previously disclosed, Carnival's higher cost per available berth day in the first half of the year is due primarily to increased fuel costs, compounded by the frontloading of advertising costs, as well as higher insurance, environmental, and security costs.

Carnival is still expected to record non-operating income of approximately $0.03 per share for insurance recoveries in the first quarter of 2003.

Edgar Filing: P&O PRINCESS CRUISES PLC - Form 425

For the second half of 2003, booking volumes remain ahead of last year's levels but not commensurate with the increase in capacity expected for the second half of the year. Prices on these bookings remain slightly below that of the prior year. As a result of the close-in booking pattern and the uncertain geopolitical environment, it is too early to give net revenue yield guidance for the remainder of 2003. Commencement of a war with Iraq, subject to the duration of such a war, would likely have negative impact on net revenue yields for the second half of 2003. Excluding the possible impact of higher fuel costs, operating cost per available berth day in the second half of 2003 is expected to be down slightly as compared to the prior year.

P&O PRINCESS

As reported with the results for the fourth quarter on 6 February 2003, the booking environment since the start of the year has not been as strong as normal for the time of year. P&O Princess believes that this is a reflection of the current geopolitical and economic uncertainties.

As previously announced and in response to demand trends from North American passengers, Grand Princess, one of the two Princess ships originally scheduled to sail in the Mediterranean this summer, has been redeployed. She will now stay in the Caribbean for the whole year. In addition, as previously announced, Princess' capacity in Alaska this summer has been reduced by the cancellation of number of cruises due to the delivery date for the new ship, Island Princess, being delayed.

Despite relatively low booking volumes in recent weeks, the proportion of capacity for 2003 as a whole for Princess remains in line with the position a year ago, with average achieved yields ahead. Cumulative bookings in the UK and Germany are ahead of the position a year ago, but not by as much as the increase in capacity that P&O Princess has in these markets in 2003. On a combined basis, yields in these two markets are below the cumulative position this time last year, mainly as a result of a change in mix of business, including the introduction of the lower priced Ocean Village brand, but yields are benefiting from favourable exchange rates when converted to P&O Princess' reporting currency of US dollars.

Higher fuel prices and exchange movements are increasing unit costs, offset by underlying unit cost savings.

THE COMBINED GROUP

The directors of each of Carnival and P&O Princess believe that the long term prospects for the Combined Group will be enhanced considerably by entering into the DLC transaction. The Combined Group will have the brands and the fleet to enable it to maximise the potential offered by growth in the worldwide cruise vacation industry. Furthermore, the Combined Group will benefit from the synergies arising from the combination. In addition, the Combined Group will have substantial financial flexibility, with strong operating cash flow, low leverage and a strong balance sheet. This financial profile means that, as well as having the upside potential from the combination, shareholders in the Combined Group also benefit from downside protection.

DEFERRED CONSIDERATION PAYABLE IN RESPECT OF AIDA CRUISES

In September 2000, P&O Princess acquired the 49 per cent. it did not own in Aida Cruises from Deutsche Seereederei GmbH ("DS") (a company wholly-owned by a non-executive director of P&O Princess, Horst Rahe, and his family). As announced at the time of the acquisition, an element of deferred consideration in respect of this transaction was also payable in respect of any 12 month period up to the end of 2005 with such payment being based on the results of Seetours. Seetours comprises the German operations of P&O Princess and includes the business of AIDA Cruises and A'ROSA. In the event of a change of control of P&O Princess, or if certain members of the P&O Princess Group fail to comply with other specific restrictions (including material breach of non-compete/non-solicitation provisions), DS is entitled to accelerate the payment of the total outstanding balance of the deferred consideration.

Completion of the DLC transaction will trigger the right to such payment. Since P&O Princess entered into the Implementation Agreement with Carnival, DS has confirmed to P&O Princess that it will exercise this right. Accordingly, P&O Princess will pay Euro 58.8 million to DS shortly after completion, and the Aida Cruises sale and purchase agreement will then terminate.

It is being announced in Germany today that Horst Rahe has agreed to accept the honorary position of Life President of Seetours on completion of the DLC transaction.
