Ref.: Official Letter 447/2015/CVM/SEP/GEA-1

Dear Sir/Madam:

In response to Official Letter 447/2015/CVM/SEP/GEA-1 (“Official Letter”) dated Nov. 5, 2015, through which you request that Braskem S.A. (“Braskem” or “Company”) provide clarifications, as described below:

“Dear Officer,

This letter is in reference to the article published on the date hereof in the newspaper Valor Econômico, section Empresas, entitled: “State-run company negotiates trigger for naphtha agreement,” which includes the following statements:

Talks between Petrobras and Braskem on a new long-term supply agreement for naphtha, the industry's main feedstock, are moving towards the definition of a fixed percentage to be applied to the ARA market price of the feedstock, with the possibility of renegotiating purchase and sale terms if the price of the crude oil barrel falls below a certain fixed amount or exceeds the lower limit of the interval defined by the companies. At this time, as ascertained by Valor, the conversations are focusing precisely on defining said percentage and on establishing the crude oil barrel prices that will act as a trigger for a potential renegotiation during the duration of the new agreement.

According to a source with information on the negotiations, the state-run company defends that the index to be applied to the ARA naphtha price reference should not be lower than 100%. Meanwhile, Braskem launched discussions in 2013 to seek a reduction in costs, but faced with a prolonged impasse, began more recently to defend a percentage as close as possible to 100%. A flexible pricing formula presented previously by the petrochemical company, which established an interval for the percentage applied to the ARA naphtha price reference, including below 100%, was virtually discarded in view of Petrobras' negative response.

Regarding the terms of the new agreement, although the government has signaled its plans for the companies to reach an agreement valid for up to 15 years, right now the most likely scenario is for the signing of a supply agreement with duration of five to ten years.

In view of the above, we request that you clarify if the statements are true and, if so, explain the reasons why the company believes they do not represent a material fact."

In this regard, Braskem clarifies to the Market that:

(a) the article refers to negotiations to renew the naphtha supply agreement between Braskem and Petrobras;

(b) the topic was recently addressed in the Notice to the Market dated October 30, 2015, in which Braskem announced new amendments to the naphtha supply agreement effective until December 15th;

(c) as is public knowledge, the working group formed by representatives from Braskem, Petrobras and Brazil's federal government continue to negotiate the conditions for a long-term naphtha supply agreement;

(d) Braskem has been keeping the market informed of the progress of these negotiations in its quarterly earnings releases, which are filed at the CVM, as well as on its Investor Relations website; and

(e) as soon as the negotiations for entering into a new long-term naphtha supply agreement are concluded, the market will be duly informed.

We remain at your disposal to provide any further clarifications.

Sincerely,

Mario Augusto da Silva
Chief Financial and Investor Relations Officer
Braskem S.A.
