PLDT powers Namfrel for clean elections

MANILA, Philippines, May 7, 2004 The PLDT Group is backing the National Citizens Movement for Free Elections (NAMFREL) this coming May 10 national elections by extending the largest and most extensive corporate support with its telecommunications facilities and services to help ensure the speedy, secure and accurate canvassing of ballots.

Through the years, PLDT has consistently supported NAMFREL in its mission. Elections are held sacrosanct by freedom-loving Filipinos and that is why it is important PLDT does its share to ensure the impartiality and fairness of these political exercises, said Napoleon L. Nazareno, who is President and CEO of both PLDT and Smart Communications Inc.

PLDT has set up a monitoring and coordinating center at its main office at the Ramon Cojuangco Building in Makati City for the installation of telecommunications facilities in all of NAMFREL's different chapters nationwide.

PLDT will be installing more than 200 phone lines nationwide and four E1 leased lines or high-speed data communications links to ensure that NAMFREL can communicate easily and pass on crucial information quickly. Prepaid PLDT Vibe Internet cards worth P300 each will also be distributed by PLDT for free to all major sites of NAMFREL.

PLDT's subsidiary Smart Communications Inc. will also have a crucial role since transmission of results for the Quick Count will be done mainly via text messaging. All the NAMFREL volunteers using Smart cellphones will be texting in the results of the election returns to the quick count center at La Salle Greenhills via a designated access number. These text messages from the volunteers will pass through the Smart hub and then transmitted to Greenhills and a back-up site using PLDT's secure, high-speed data facilities. Cellphone prepaid loads have also been provided to NAMFREL volunteers.

Smart has deployed cellsites on wheels to augment capacity in high traffic areas.

Virgilio V. Hernandez, PLDT Relationship Management Executive and a long-time coordinator for projects with NAMFREL, said advances in technology are changing the way NAMFREL is monitoring the elections.

Unlike in previous elections, NAMFREL will be employing cellular phones and the Internet aside from the usual voice and fax communications. It will now be more efficient, faster and less prone to miscommunication and inaccuracies, said Hernandez, who heads the operations of PLDT's monitoring and coordinating center.

Ramon R. Isberto, Head of Public Affairs of Smart, said cellular phones would be the main medium of transmission of results to the regional and national centers of NAMFREL.

Special menus and software have already been put in place by NAMFREL in coordination with our engineers to make transmission and consolidation of results easier. The menus already have the names of the candidates so that NAMFREL volunteers will just put in the numbers, explained Isberto.

PLDT's monitoring and coordinating center for its joint project with NAMFREL will ensure that all the phone lines, hot lines, data links and Internet cards are installed and distributed according to a predetermined schedule. Each province is being monitored as to the rate of completion and problems encountered with installation.

This is certainly part of PLDT's public service, said Rene S. Meily, Special Assistant to the PLDT Chairman and overall chair of Task Force NAMFREL. While we don't take sides with any candidate, we definitely cannot be neutral or indifferent to the crucial role we can play in helping our nation have clean elections.

Manuel V. Pangilinan, PLDT Chairman, added that elections are important events for the economic welfare of Filipinos.

Clean and honest elections help the country achieve the stability needed for economic growth. PLDT's partnership with NAMFREL is concrete proof of our commitment to serving the Filipino people in any way we can, he said.

NAMFREL is a non-partisan voluntary organization dedicated to ensuring clean, orderly and honest elections in the Philippines. It was founded in 1983 and its first electoral operation was held during the 1984 Batasan Pambansa elections. The group has already conducted 23 operations for both national and local elections, and this year will be its 10th national exercise.
