Semi-Annual Report

April 30, 2007

The Central Europe and Russia Fund, Inc.

LETTER TO THE SHAREHOLDERS

Dear Shareholder,

For the six months ended April 30, 2007, the Central Europe and Russia Fund's total return (based on its net asset value per share) was 17.83% in United States (US) dollar terms, while its total return based on share price was 13.15%. The Fund's benchmark rose 14.34% on an un-annualized basis during the same period.¹

During the first quarter of 2007, volatility was the key feature of the Russian market as global turbulence pushed the market lower at the start of the year, followed by a recovery that led the market to new highs toward the end of February, and then another sell-off and another recovery. Within the Russian portion of the portfolio, the Fund's overweight positions have primarily been related to the domestic economy (financial companies, consumer goods and infrastructure-related stocks) and industries undergoing restructuring and reform (electric utilities and telecoms).² The Fund is also overweight in the materials segment due to our positive view on metal prices. Within the Russian energy sector, we prefer natural gas companies to oil companies. Subsequent to April 30, 2007, we have reduced exposure of the Fund to Russia.

Turkish shares also displayed sensitivity to investor sentiment during the first quarter of 2007 as global jitters at the very start of the year, and again at the end of February, drove the ISE 30 Index down 5% and 13%, respectively. The second correction was especially deep due to local political concerns and worries about the inflation trend in the country. But looking beyond Istanbul's high-beta characteristics, the other message from the first quarter was that the underlying tone of the market is very positive, supported by strong gross domestic product (GDP) growth, the prospect of easing inflation and lower interest rates, and by the market's modest valuation less than 11 times 2007 consensus earnings.³ The Turkish market remains at a lower valuation level than its peer markets due to the high level of real interest rates, the greater perceived risk posed by the external accounts, and a variety of political risks. The Fund's allocation to Turkish equities is in line with benchmark weight as of the end of the reporting period. Sector-wise, the Fund is overweight in consumer-related, construction, and construction materials stocks and underweight in financials, conglomerates and telecoms.

The first quarter of 2007 was rather mixed for emerging European equities, with Czech and Polish markets posting respectable gains while the Hungarian market ended the period in the red. Momentum remains positive on the Prague Stock Exchange with shares continuing to advance following a strong rise in 2006. Nonetheless, we remain comfortable with the Fund's significant underweight relative to the benchmark since stock valuations are less than compelling. Still, we believe a few Czech stocks warrant a position within the Fund's portfolio because of their favorable long-term growth and good total return prospects. Telefonica O2 was added to the portfolio in the first quarter due to its defensive characteristics, including strong cash flow, high dividend, and an underleveraged balance sheet.

The Hungarian market's valuation remains reasonable, trading at levels close to those in Turkey and well below the norms for Polish and Czech shares. Downside risk seems limited, but we see few near-term triggers for a rally in Hungarian equities. Among the Fund's five core markets, Hungarian equities are allocated the smallest percentage of the portfolio.

In the first quarter of 2007, the Polish equity market continued its climb. Retail, construction and real estate were the main outperformers, while telecoms and oil and gas stocks were the main laggards. Currently, Polish stocks trade at a premium to both US and European markets. However, annual earnings per share growth is forecast to average 10% over the 2007-2009 time period. The strong economic conditions that contributed to the positive market performance in the first quarter look likely to continue, albeit at a more moderate pace. Robust economic growth, rising incomes and declining unemployment may support equity market sentiment in the months ahead despite a less dovish policy stance from the monetary policy committee.

The Fund's discount to net asset value averaged 9.96% during the six months ended April 30, 2007.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

Czech Republic:

Real gross domestic product (GDP) growth slowed marginally to 5.8% year-over-year (yoy) in the fourth quarter of 2006 (from 5.9% yoy in Q3). The structure of demand shifted further to the domestic side as household consumption picked up to 5.4% yoy, government consumption added 2.6% yoy and fixed capital formation expanded 7.6% yoy. Net exports, in contrast, swung into negative territory, subtracting 0.3 percentage points from GDP growth. Inflation at the end of April 2007 stood at 2.5% yoy. Prevailing opinion is that the central bank could deliver the first rate hike as early as the third quarter. The government has outlined economic reforms aimed at the tax system, healthcare and pension financing. One of the main objectives of the reforms is to bring the public sector budget deficit down to 3.0% in 2008.

Hungary:

Macroeconomic data shows a picture of increased export contribution to growth with household demand and investment surprising on the downside while industrial production remained very strong. Looking ahead, we expect the continuation of positive trade balance figures and further disappointment of domestic demand driven economic figures. Meanwhile, inflation continued to rise in April 2007 (8.8% yoy). We expect growth to remain soft and yoy inflation to start falling, mainly on base effects and soft domestic demand. Monetary policy is currently tight and we expect interest rate policy to start easing in the second quarter. Fiscal policy is currently on the track of the convergence program. Balance of payments support for the currency is improving faster than expected. We believe that the period of negative news flow is now behind us, with both twin deficits improving. That said, we do not expect any ratings upgrades this year.

Poland:

Over the last few months, the central bank failed to issue hawkish comments, but now with another batch of strong data, the central bank increased rates 0.25% to 4.25% in April. We expect the monetary policy committee will continue to closely watch labor market data, as the dynamic of the fall in unemployment may raise questions about whether inflation will rise above the central bank's target in 2008-2009. Given the strong economy and the high growth of tax revenues, it is likely that 2007, as in the previous three years, will see the deficit end lower than the official target. The Polish zloty is lagging behind other currencies in the region. Despite hefty foreign direct investment (FDI) inflows, portfolio inflows over the last six months have been lagging, which may reflect the small rate premium over future inflation.

Russia:

Although inflation came in better than expected in the first quarter, underlying pressure has not disappeared yet: core inflation has not fallen at the same pace as the headline, and money supply is still very strong due to ongoing capital inflows. Meanwhile, mild weather has helped economic indicators to improve further, most notably with investment growth accelerating to 20% yoy in February (a level not seen since post-crisis recovery) and GDP growth to around 8% yoy. We expect the sharp disinflation trend to halt in the second quarter as money supply growth is still very strong and fiscal policy is too relaxed. Fiscal policy is currently loosening ahead of the Duma and Presidential elections. With the oil price forecast on the high side, the target surplus has been revised down. Although the current account surplus has deteriorated somewhat, capital inflows are chunky and foreign exchange reserves continue to rise, reaching US$369 billion by the end of April. Similar to 2006, the Central Bank of Russia will likely revalue the ruble to slow money supply growth. We expect a relatively aggressive 3.5% nominal appreciation of the ruble vs. the USD/EUR basket in 2007.

Turkey:

Household consumption has slowed in the past six months, as reflected in loan, import, and tax growth data, but a pick-up is anticipated as inflation expectations start to fall again, and against the backdrop of a robust Turkish lira. The economy should see 5.4% GDP growth this year, also supported by strong ex-privatization FDI activity. The latter has continued to support the external balance backdrop, which has also improved on lower oil prices and a strong pick-up in tourism inflows. Inflation picked up in April, rising 1.2% over the previous month; inflation is up 10.7% compared to a year ago. The Central Bank of Turkey (CBT) has become slightly more hawkish lately against the backdrop of underlying inflation pressure. Nevertheless, we continue to see the CBT starting to cut rates in July.

Shares of closed-end funds frequently trade at a discount to net asset value. The price of the Fund's shares is determined by a number of factors, several of which are beyond the control of the Fund. Therefore, the Fund cannot predict whether its shares will trade at, below or above net asset value. Closed-end funds, unlike open-end funds, are not continuously offered. There is a one-time public offering, and once issued, shares of closed-end funds are sold in the open market through a stock exchange.

The Fund is complying with the German tax transparency rules for the current fiscal year that ends on October 31, 2007 and therefore qualifies as a transparent fund within the meaning of the German fund tax law (InvStG 2004).

INTERVIEW WITH THE LEAD PORTFOLIO MANAGER Ralf Oberbanscheidt

Question: Why have the Fund's holdings in Russian consumer-related sectors increased? Isn't the Russian market a commodity story?

Answer: The Fund's weighting in consumer-related sectors in Russia has increased due to the appreciation of stocks that have had good performance, as well as an active decision by the portfolio management team to favor consumer-related sectors in Russia. It is certainly true that Russia is rich in natural resources, such as oil, gas, and precious metals, and the boom in commodity prices over the past few years has been a key factor in the growth of the Russian market. What we have seen recently, though, is that Russia's wealth in natural resources has had a trickle-down effect, leading to broad-based changes in the Russian economy. Consumer-related sectors are enjoying support as national household incomes rise strongly and increased spending drives volume gains. The emerging middle class has money to spend on food, clothes, cars, and other goods and services. In addition, the government and private companies now have money to spend on infrastructure development repairing roads, building bridges, replacing old equipment, upgrading production facilities, etc. Finally, liberalization in the property and banking sectors, coupled with growing demand from the new middle class for homes and financial services, represents a long-term opportunity for companies in these sectors. Russia's two largest banks have raised $17 billion on the equity markets this year Sberbank raised $9 billion through a rights offering and VTB raised $8 billion through an IPO. Overall IPO proceeds year-to-date for Russian companies top $15 billion (this does not include the proceeds from the Sberbank rights offering), compared approximately to $18 billion in 2006. Unlike last year, when it was the Russian oil and metals companies leading the charge, this year's IPOs have primarily been consumer and banking-related companies. We expect sustained high commodity prices to continue to bring strong liquidity flows into the Russian economy which in turn is likely to lead to a further acceleration of the domestic economy.

Question: How has the recent political turmoil in Turkey impacted that market?

Answer: Although elections in emerging markets are often eventful, the developments in Turkey, where the president is elected by parliament, took many by surprise. Investors and political observers had been focused on whether Prime Minister Erdogan would run for President. Once he decided not to run, it seemed as though the election excitement was over. Mr. Erdogan, a member of the majority party, proposed Abdullah Gul as candidate for president, and it was generally expected that Mr. Gul would win the parliamentary vote. However, the army general voiced opposition to the majority party and its candidate on the eve of the election, spurring opposition party members to boycott the vote and prevent the quorum required for the vote. Prime Minister Erdogan is now trying to change the constitution to allow the president to be elected by public vote, rather than parliament. Parliamentary elections, originally scheduled for November, are now planned for July. As far as financial markets are concerned, there was an immediate, modest decline in the market at the end of April, when the political wrangling first began, but the market has now stabilized. It will be important to monitor developments closely, but for now, we are comfortable maintaining our current weighting in Turkey.

Question: Among the CE-3 markets, Poland has the largest weight in the Fund. What are the key drivers of this market?

Answer: One of the key factors influencing the Polish market is that local investors continue to be instrumental in the growth of the equity market, providing a new source of money to drive the market. Polish investors pumped more than five billion zloty into domestic mutual funds in March, a new record. This is money over and above the regular monthly flow of funds into Poland's private pension system that has traditionally provided support for the market by allocating about 30% of assets to local equities. The pension funds have now become large enough to be able to move the market by adjusting their asset allocation.

Total investment return based on market value is calculated assuming that shares of the Fund's common stock were purchased at the closing market price as of the beginning of the year, dividends, capital gains and other distributions were reinvested as provided for in the Fund's dividend reinvestment plan and then sold at the closing market price per share on the last day of the period. The computation does not reflect any sales commission investors may incur in purchasing or selling shares of the Fund. The total investment return based on the net asset value is similarly computed except that the Fund's net asset value is substituted for the closing market value.

* Return excludes the effect of the $2.15 and $3.25 respectively, for 2004 and 2006 per share dilution associated with the Fund's rights offering.

 The custody credits are attributable to interest earned on U.S. cash balances. The ratios of total expenses after custody credits to average net assets are .99%, 1.04%, 1.19%, 1.26%, 1.50% and 1.54% for 2007, 2006, 2005, 2004, 2003 and 2002, respectively.

 Annualized

* Not Annualized

 Not Annualized. The ratio for the six months ended April 30, 2007 has not been annualized since the Fund believes it would not be appropriate because the Fund's dividend income is not earned ratably throughout the fiscal year.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS APRIL 30, 2007 (unaudited)

NOTE 1. ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The Central Europe and Russia Fund, Inc. is a non-diversified, closed-end management investment company incorporated in Maryland. The Fund commenced investment operations on March 6, 1990.

The following is a summary of significant accounting policies followed by the Fund in the preparation of its financial statements. The preparation of financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Security Valuation: Investments are stated at value. All securities for which market quotations are readily available are valued at the last sales price on the primary exchange on which they are traded prior to the time of valuation. If no sales price is available at that time, and both bid and ask prices are available, the securities are valued at the mean between the last current bid and ask prices; if no quoted asked prices are available, they are valued at the last quoted bid price. All securities for which market quotations are not readily available will be valued as determined in good faith by the Board of Directors of the Fund. The Fund calculates its net asset value per share at 11:30 A.M., New York time, in order to minimize the possibility that events occurring after the close of the securities exchanges on which the Fund's portfolio securities principally trade would require adjustment to the closing market prices in order to reflect fair value.

In September 2006, The Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) released Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 157, "Fair Value Measurements" ("FAS 157"). FAS 157 defines fair value, establishes a framework for measuring fair value and expands disclosures about fair value measurements. FAS 157 is effective for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007. As of April 30, 2007, management does not believe the adoption of FAS 157 will impact the amounts reported in the financial statements, however, additional disclosures will be required about the inputs used to develop the measurements of fair value and the effect of certain of the measurements reported in the statement of operations for a fiscal period.

Securities Transactions and Investment Income: Securities transactions are recorded on the trade date. Cost of securities sold is calculated using the identified cost method. Dividend income is recorded on the ex-dividend date and interest income is recorded on an accrual basis. Such dividend income is recorded net of unrecoverable foreign withholding tax.

Securities Lending: The Fund may lend securities to financial institutions. The Fund retains beneficial ownership of the securities it has loaned and continues to receive interest and dividends paid by the securities and to participate in any changes in their market value. The Fund requires the borrowers of the securities to maintain collateral with the Fund consisting of liquid, unencumbered assets having a value at least equal to or greater than the "Margin Percentage" of the value of the securities loaned. "Margin Percentage" shall mean (i) for collateral which is denominated in the same currency as the loaned securities, 102%, and (ii) for collateral which is denominated in a currency different from that of the loaned securities, 105%. The Fund may invest the cash collateral into a joint trading account in an affiliated money market fund pursuant to Exemptive Orders issued by the SEC. Deutsche Asset Management receives a management fee on the cash collateral invested in the affiliated money fund. The Fund receives compensation for lending its securities either in the form of fees or by earning interest on invested cash collateral net of fees paid to a lending agent. Either the Fund or the borrower may terminate the loan. The Fund is subject to all investment risks associated with the value of any cash collateral received, including, but not limited to, interest rate, credit and liquidity risk associated with such investments.

Foreign Currency Translation: The books and records of the Fund are maintained in United States dollars.

Assets and liabilities denominated in euros and other foreign currency are translated into United States dollars at the 11:00 A.M. mid-point of the buying and selling spot rates quoted by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

THE CENTRAL EUROPE AND RUSSIA FUND, INC.

Purchases and sales of investment securities, income and expenses are reported at the rate of exchange prevailing on the respective dates of such transactions. The resultant gains and losses arising from exchange rate fluctuations are identified separately in the Statement of Operations, except for such amounts attributable to investments, which are included in net realized and unrealized gains and losses on investments.

Contingencies: In the normal course of business, the Fund may enter into contracts with service providers that contain general indemnification clauses. The Fund's maximum exposure under these arrangements is unknown as this would involve future claims that may be made against the Fund that have not yet occurred. However, based on experience, the Fund expects the risk of loss to be remote.

Taxes: No provision has been made for United States Federal income tax because the Fund intends to meet the requirements of the United States Internal Revenue Code applicable to regulated investment companies and to distribute substantially all of its taxable income to shareholders.

The cost of investments at April 30, 2007 was $422,740,553 for United States Federal income tax purposes. Accordingly, as of April 30, 2007, net unrealized appreciation of investments aggregated $409,845,172, of which $413,895,020 and $4,049,848 related to unrealized appreciation and depreciation, respectively.

In July 2006, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) issued Interpretation No. 48, "Accounting for Uncertainty in Income Taxes" an interpretation of FASB Statement No. 109" (the "Interpretation"). The Interpretation establishes for the Fund a minimum threshold for financial statement recognition of the benefit of positions taken in filing tax returns (including whether the Fund is taxable in certain jurisdictions), and requires certain expanded tax disclosures. The Interpretation is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2006. On December 22, 2006, the SEC indicated that they would not object if a Fund implements FIN 48 in the first required financial statement reporting period for its fiscal year beginning after December 15, 2006. Management has begun to evaluate the application of the Interpretation to the Fund and is not in a position at this time to estimate the significance of its impact, if any, on the Fund's financial statements.

Dividends and Distributions to Shareholders: The Fund records dividends and distributions to its shareholders on the ex-dividend date. Income and capital gain distributions are determined in accordance with United States Federal income tax regulations which may differ from accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. These differences, which could be temporary or permanent in nature, may result in reclassification of distributions; however, net investment income, net realized gains and net assets are not affected.

NOTE 2. MANAGEMENT AND INVESTMENT ADVISORY AGREEMENTS

The Fund has a Management Agreement with Deutsche Investment Management Americas Inc. (the "Manager"). The Fund has an Investment Advisory Agreement with Deutsche Asset Management International GmbH (the "Investment Adviser"). The Manager and the Investment Adviser are affiliated companies.

The Management Agreement provides the Manager with a fee, computed weekly and payable monthly, at the annual rates of .65% of the Fund's average weekly net assets up to $100 million, .55% of such assets in excess of $100 million and up to $500 million and .50% of such assets in excess of $500 million. The Investment Advisory Agreement provides the Investment Adviser with a fee, computed weekly and payable monthly, at the annual rates of .35% of the Fund's average weekly net assets up to $100 million and .25% of such assets in excess of $100 million. Accordingly, for the period ended April 30, 2007, the fee pursuant to the Management and Investment Advisory Agreements was equivalent to an annualized effective rate of .80% of the Fund's average net assets.

Pursuant to the Management Agreement, the Manager is the corporate manager and administrator of the Fund and, subject to the supervision of the Board of Directors and pursuant to recommendations made by the Fund's Investment Adviser, determines the suitable securities for investment by the Fund. The Manager also provides office facilities and certain administrative, clerical and bookkeeping services for the Fund. Pursuant to the Investment Advisory Agreement, the Investment Adviser, in accordance with the Fund's stated investment objective, policies and restrictions, makes recommendations to the Manager with respect to the Fund's investments and, upon instructions given by the Manager as to suitable securities for investment by the Fund, transmits purchase and sale orders to select brokers and dealers to execute portfolio transactions on behalf of the Fund.

NOTE 3. TRANSACTIONS WITH AFFILIATES

For the period ended April 30, 2007, Deutsche Bank AG, the German parent of the Manager and Investment Adviser, and its affiliates received $4,550 in brokerage commissions as a result of executing agency transactions in portfolio securities on behalf of the Fund, that the Board determined were effected in compliance with the Fund's Rule 17e-1 procedures.

Certain officers of the Fund are also officers of either the Manager or Deutsche Bank AG.

The Fund pays each Director not affiliated with the Manager retainer fees plus specified amounts for attended board and committee meetings.

Effective February 1, 2007, DWS Scudder Investments Service Company ("DWS-SISC"), an affiliate of the Manager, is the transfer agent, dividend-paying agent and shareholder service agent of the Fund. Pursuant to a sub-transfer agency agreement between DWS-SISC and DST Systems, Inc. ("DST"), DWS-SISC has delegated certain transfer agent and dividend-paying agent paying function to DST. DWS-SISC compensates DST out of the shareholder servicing fee it receives from the Fund. For the six month ended April 30, 2007, the amount charged to the Fund by DWS-SISC aggregated $9,152.

NOTE 4. PORTFOLIO SECURITIES

Purchases and sales of investment securities, other than short-term investments, for the year ended April 30, 2007 were $115,503,326 and $173,372,811, respectively.

NOTE 5. INVESTING IN FOREIGN MARKETS

Foreign investments may involve certain considerations and risks not typically associated with those of domestic origin as a result of, among others, the possibility of political and economic developments and the level of governmental supervision and regulation of foreign securities markets. In addition, certain foreign markets may be substantially smaller, less developed, less liquid and more volatile than the major markets of the United States.

NOTE 6. CAPITAL

The Fund had no capital stock repurchase activity for the six months ended April 30, 2007. During the six months ended April 30, 2007, the Fund reissued 792,411 shares held in treasury as part of the dividend reinvestment plan.
